About the only thing in the description was that she was hisanily dressed, and she answered to this with the greatest nicety. She came here, evicently in her best, which consisted of a Chantieler hat, a pretty bodiec and a blue skirt. When the officer, accompanied by Parrish, called on her, she mad forgottle part of her attire, or left it off on account of the heat, for she was minus her shoes. When Parrish called to her she asked to be excused, but the officer said he was willing to wait, and she burred upstairs to make herself more presentable. When she discovered his errand, she burst into tears, and said she would not go. But she was finally persuaded that it would be best for her to go quelty, and she agreed to accompany Parrish and Detective Kellam to the First Police Station, where she was locked up for the night.

Found Him at Last.

Parrish is employed on the Marshall street viaduct, which is being erected as part of the street car line of the Richmond and Henrico Railway Company. Detective Kellam waited a long time for his man, and at last found him. Parrish told him were the girl was, but the officer insisted that Parrish accompany him, and the two went to the house together.

It seems that Parrish was first a boarder at 2002 East Broad Street, where the girl found him. On the afternoon that she came he asked the boarding house mistress to serve a meal for another, whom he introduced as his friend. Later, after supper, he

On the afternoon that she came he asked the boarding house mistress to serve a meal for another, whom he introduced as his friend. Later, after supper, he introduced her as his wife. But the landlady became dublous, and she requested the couple to move. Then they went to 518 North Seventh Street, where they have been living it is said, as man and wife.

When accosted by the officer, the girl was irate and determined, and put in a few feminine tears. Parrish said he would accompany her home. The man was put through a lengthy interrogation by Captain McMahon, and finally said that he was willing to marry the runaway maid. As the girl came here of the rown willing, and because the police have no direct evidence, the man was released.

On board the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, the night before his arrival in New York. Mr. Roosevelt gave out the positive statement, evidently for the purpose of forestalling invitations, that he would not make any speeches at all for the next two months, about which time he has several engagements in the West to make addresses on nonpolitical subjects. Time and again since he landed this statement has been relierated.

Where is Ninth?

Mr. Roosevelt has said he would not speak at one place or another in response to direct questions, but there has been nothing to indicate that he knows there is such a district as the Ninth of Virginia.

At his office in New York on Thursday the ex-President impressed on the newspaper men the fact that no politics would enter into his speeches in the West. "I don't know when I shall make a political speech," he said." don't know that I will ever make another political speech," He would not say that he would never again speak on politics but he made it very clear that he did not wish to say anything on the subject to the public, and that politics are out of his mind.

This seems to indicate that all requests to take part in the congressional campaigns will be declined. Which is disappointing to the people of Virginia, who were auxious to see how he would make his insurgent proclivities coincide with the proposition of advocating the re-election of Mr. Slemp, an unvarying reactionary and supporter of Speaker Cannon.

MAYOR GOING AFTER CITY DEPARTMENTS

Must Unify Public Works.

The Mayor is of the opinion that the root of the matter will not be reached until one board or committee has control of all public works. In his first annual message to the Council he called especial attention to the remarks of City Engineer Boiling in his annual report as to the waste and insefficiency of digging up the streets after they have been improved, and in some instances paved. In that message the Mayor said: "As all these three classes of work (sewers, water and gas mains), are now ordered by three separate committees, acting independently, it has been difficult to carry out these suggestions, but the continuous digging up of streets has given occasion for so much complaint that all work of this character should be ordered by one committee or by a streets believed to get the machine. The men went back and got the machine. The men went back and got the machine. The

That the friction and petty jealousy and lack of co-operation between the city departments has reached a serious stage, costing the public treasury annually large sums of money, is shown by the report of the special Committee on Changes in the Form of City Government, which proposes a plan for an executive board or committee of salaried officials, nominated by the Mayor and elected by the Court by the Mayor and elected by the Coun-cil, which, under general direction of the Council, shall have executive charge of the various departments, the awarding of contracts, and auditing of accounts, the supervision of city work and the administration of its business affairs

The ordinance carrying this plan into effect practically abolishing the standing committees which now have charge of the various departments, has been recommended for adoption by the Council Committee on Ordinance, Charter and Reform, the only amendment being an experience of the council committee.

been recommended for adoption by the Council Committee on Ordinance. Charter and Reform, the only amendment being an increase in the proposed compensation of the executive officers, that committee holding that it would be economy on the city's part to employ competent men for all their tilme to see that city improvements are properly made and that it would not become necessary to do such work again and again each time at the expense of the taxpayer and to the detriment and loss of property owners whose property is still awaiting similar improvement.

Another plan has been suggested, and is pending in one of the various committees in which such matters are allowed to be lost. It provides for an executive board, composed of the heads of the various departments; that is, to consist of the Mayor, the City Engineer, the Superintendent of Gas Works. Still another plan, which has been suggested, and which only political considerations prevented from being adopted a year or two ago, is putting the Gas and Water Departments under control of the City Engineer, making the heads of those departments assistants in his office, so that all may report to one man, and he, in turn, may advise with a single Council committee, which will have charge of all public works. It is argued for this plan that the City Engineer now has an assistant in charge of improvement of streets; another who supervises the sewer system and its extensions; still another who has oversight of parks and playgrounds, and a fourth, who, under Mr. Bolling's direction, oversees the work of harbor improvement.

Favor Some Change.

Several Councilimen approached yesterday were unwilling to commit themselves to any specific plan or to pronise to support any particular remedy but all agreed that the waste and inefficiency of the present system showed a giaring defect that must be taken up and remedied as soon as possible and by the method which best commends itself to the minds of the more active and experienced Councilmen.

Mayor Richardson has taken vigorous hold of the complaint made by City Engineer Bolling to the Street Committee of the lack of co-operation between the city departments, with the consequent expenses to the tax payers and the patch-work appearance, and it consultation with City Attorney Pollard yesterday morning for some street inne, and later addressed letters to the waterworks, and Superintendent to probable on see the probable of the waterworks, and Superintendent to the waterworks, and Superintendent to the waterworks, and Superintendent to Superintendent to Probable of the waterworks, and Superintendent to Superintendent Davis, of the Water Department, as to the condition of trenches on Twentieth Street, which the near future.

The subject is not a new one, and but City Engineer Bolling and Mayor Richardson have before protested in annual reports and messages. Streets have been gravelled or paved and the improvement has been hardly-completed before workmen come along and dig trenches for a gas main or a water pipe, or possible for both a few weeks apart, and the street for which at the taxpayers have just paid to have put in order, is left seamed and ridged, and almost impassable. Grove Avenue sayms and is now a most undesirable thoroughfare for smooth driving.
